MURDER IS THE SEQUEL

To Elopement of Rich Texas Couple.

Husband of Woman Who Skipped With Young Boyce, Kills Father of Wife's Affinity.

Fort Worth, Tex., January 13.—The sensational elopement of Mrs. Lena B. Sneed, wife of a rich banker of Amarillo, with A. G. Boyce, Jr., millionaire ranchman, had its still more sensational ending tonight when J. B. Sneed, the husband, shot and killed A. G. Boyce, Sr., father of the man who eloped with his wife.

The shooting occurred shortly after 9 o'clock in the lobby of the Metropolitan Hotel, crowded with people at the time. Sneed fired five shots at Boyce, four taking effect. He used a 32-caliber automatic and the bullets lodged in the abdomen, ranging between the naval and the groin.

SPOKE ONLY WITH GUN.

Boyce was seated in the lobby of the hotel a short distance from the main entrance. Sneed entered by the main doorway. He never spoke to Boyce, but instead whipped out his revolver and began firing. His first shot took effect, striking Boyce in the pit of the stomach. Boyce jumped and pitched forward, but at the same instant Sneed's revolver cracked and three more shots landed in the abdomen. Sneed fled by a side entrance and ran to Central police station, where he surrendered. He refused to go into a statement to either newspaper reporters or police.

The shooting came as a big surprise to persons who have been following the case since the sensational flight of Mrs. Sneed and young Boyce from Fort Worth on November 11. Sneed and his wife little more than a week ago effected a reconciliation and returned to Texas from Winnipeg, where she and young Boyce were caught. This afternoon the elder Boyce had just succeeded in getting all indictments against his son dismissed by the County Attorney. This it was thought would end the case.

SEARCH ENDED IN CANADA.

The elopement of Mrs. Sneed and young Boyce attracted attention throughout the country. The search for the missing couple extended from here to St. Louis, thence to Chicago, Atlantic City, New York and finally to Winnipeg, Man., where they were arrested. As soon as the couple were arrested Sneed's attorneys had indictments returned against Boyce charging abduction, rape and theft. A requisition was immediately applied for, but this Gov. Colquhoun refused to grant, as it was based solely on the question of whether or not Mrs. Sneed was there at the time she ran away with Boyce. Canadian authorities found her sane and refused to hold her after the arrival of her husband. Boyce was allowed to go free and announced that he would go to Alberta, Western Canada, and go into the cattle business.

Young Boyce when he left Fort Worth carried change to the amount of $5,000 or $6,000 in cash.

Fordville School Notes.

School is moving on nicely. Teachers and students alike are utilizing every effort to make our school the best we have ever had. Every one is busy preparing for the examination which will begin about the 17th.

The following students from the county have entered school since the holidays: Miss Eunice Shultz, Narrows; Everett Hobbs, Hambert; Elizabeth Bellamy, Whitesville; Imon Bellamy and Edith Howard, Fordville R. R.

Quite a number of new studies are expected at the opening of the Spring term, January 22.

High Literary Societies are in splendid order. The F. E. W. have grown so in number that on last Friday they divided into a senior and a junior society. The Seniors retained their present officers and the Juniors elected the following: President, Martha Albert Quisenberry; Vice-President, Sally Lamm, Sec. Irene Hale, Treasurer, Ruby Neal, Critic, Miss Grace Whitlatch, Editor, Ruby Neal.

Two traveling libraries will be established in our school in a few days. One of fifty volumes for the students, the other a farmer's library, consisting of fifteen books on agricultural subjects.

The board of Trustees are encouraging the faculty by seeing that everything is done that is needed for the comfort of the school.

The faculty earnestly urges the patrons and those of the surrounding country interested in education to investigate the work of the school and to give it such support as in their opinion it deserves.

Debt Leads to Murder.

London, Ky., Jan. 13.—Rauben Arthur was shot and killed by Leonard Allen at the home of the former, near the Pulaski county line, fifteen miles west of here, today. The two men quarreled over a small amount of corn which Allen claimed Arthur owed him. Allen claims self-defense. He says that Arthur attacked him with an ax and that he tried to save his own life. Arthur received a bullet in the stomach and only lived a few hours.

The two men were neighbors and were married. Allen has sent word to Sheriff Seoville that he will be in London tomorrow to surrender.

Baltimore Wins.

The Democratic National Committee selected Baltimore as the convention city. June 25 was fixed as the date of the national gathering when candidates for President and Vice President will be selected.

HARTFORD ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

Will Equip Gymnasium and Organize Basket Ball Teams—Officers Elected.

A meeting of the Hartford Athletic Association was held in the court house last Friday night, having met on Monday night previous and elected temporary president and secretary, and appointed committees to recommend a Constitution and By-Laws to govern the body. In the absence of Temporary President Otto C. Martin, Mr. B. L. Taylor called the house to order. The Committee on Constitution reported and all of its recommendations were unanimously adopted. It was voted that the Association be governed by a Board of Directors, seven in number, and a General Manager, who is a member of the Board. An election being called for the following were elected as Directors for a period of three months, or until their successors shall have been elected: H. E. Mitchell, C. O. Hunter, McDowell A. Fogle, Otto C. Martin, Dr. A. B. Riley, Barry L. Taylor and J. Ney Foster.

The Manager of the Association is elected by that body, and Mr. Barry L. Taylor was chosen for that position. Immediately upon adjournment a meeting of the Directors was held and the following officers were elected: President—J. Ney Foster; Secretary—McDowell A. Fogle; Treasurer—C. O. Hunter.

The entire second floor of J. C. Har's grocery has been rented for a period of twelve months, and an excellent gymnasium will be installed. Already the basket ball goals have been arranged, and as soon as possible, a complete gymnasium will be installed, and a splendid basket ball team developed. In the summer time there will be at least two base ball teams.

This organization is calculated to do much good for the boys and young men of the town and stands off under splendid prospects, considering the assistance it is getting from influential men, and will do much toward developing the social and physical make-up of our young men.

Most Successful Corn Grower.

The most successful boy corn raiser in Kentucky for 1911 was I. V. Hooper, a seventeen-year-old boy of Union county. He received, as a premium, a silver cup valued at $50.00. He produced twenty-nine barrels of corn on a single acre of ground. His net profit on the acre was more than $60.00, the price of the corn having been put at 65 cents a bushel.

READY TO RUSH ARMY

Jap War Scare Starts Quick Action at Washington.

Pacific Squadron of Four Cruisers Now at Scene of Danger.

Washington, January 13.—Following close upon the alarming statement made yesterday by Major General William H. Carter, before the House Committee on Military Affairs, that 35,000 efficient Japanese soldiers are now in Hawaii ready to wrest that invaluable possession from the United States, the War Department admitted today that definite plans are now complete to equip and rush an entire division of troops recruited to war strength, to those islands for permanent service. It was decided to send five regiments of infantry, each of the twelve companies recruited to 150 men; one regiment of cavalry, every troop at full fighting strength; one full regiment of field artillery; eight companies of coast artillery, to be separated from the mobile army; one company of engineers and one company of the signal corps. All are to be accompanied by the necessary sanitary force and under the command of a major general.

PACIFIC SQUADRON SENT.

It was further learned today that, not content with sending a full division of soldiers to Hawaii, the Government has sent the Pacific squadron of armored cruisers as well. These four big ships are at the present moment carefully engaged in making a minute survey of the coast from a naval point of view, it being their purpose to ascertain precisely where an army could land.

So anxious is the war Department to prevent its panic from being known that today Secretary of War Stimson contradicted the statement made by Gen. Carter as to the number of Japanese soldiers in Hawaii. He did not, however, deny that the full division of troops numbering more than 13,000 fighting men, the biggest army ever hurried by the United States to distant territory, except in actual time of war, is going to those islands. The entire infantry force alone will number 9,000.

REGRETS PUBLICITY.

Gen. Carter expressed regret today that his statement had become public. It was made in confidence before the military committee, he said. Even a stenographer was barred from the room while he was giving his testimony. As to Gen. Carter's opportunity to obtain exact knowledge, it is pointed out that up to eighteen months ago he was stationed in the Philippines. On his way home he paid a visit to Hawaii.

Illustrating the eagerness with which the War Department is making ready for this emergency it is pointed out that within the past few days Gen. Leonard Wood has directed that a complete list showing the continuous term of service in Washington of all officers now here should be prepared and sent to him.

It is understood that every officer who has been in Washington for more than four years will be transferred, many of them going to Hawaii. This means a shakeup such as the War Department has not experienced in many years.

Lepor Lad saves Colony from Flames by wireless call.

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 13.—Owing to the quick wit of Archie Thomas, a nineteen-year-old Upton (Mass.) High School student, condemned to a living death among the lepor colony at Festos Island, the naive cutter Aushab was able to reach the island in time this afternoon to extinguish a fire that threatened to wipe out the entire village.

leaving the afflicted men and women without shelter on a desolate bit of sand with the thermometer registering 20 below zero.

Young Thomas, who had made a fad of wireless telegraphy before his disease became pronounced, had been placed in charge of the wireless station on the island and flashed the call for help to the mainland as soon as the fire began to assume dangerous proportions.

Oak Grove.

The A. S. of E. met at the Grove last Wednesday night for the first time in about eight months and elected new officers. Elmer W. Smith, President, J. J. Wilson Vice President, Virgil Drake, Secretary and C. W. Ramsey Treasurer.

Mr. Earl Smith has bought like Austin's farm. Consideration $425.

The farmers are very busy at present rabbit hunting.

Messrs. T. C. Hossy, Hubert Faught, Will Langford, Everett Langford, Bill McCaslin, of Selet, were at the Equity meeting Wednesday night.

Born to the wife of Elvis Burdon a fine 12 pound girl. Dr. Allen attending physician.

School at this place will close Friday.

Mr. J. J. Wilson and family are visiting in Selet at present.

Mr. Earl Smith and wife are visiting Mrs. Smith's parents.

Mr. Wilson Smith was elected to the Master Station of Cromwell Lodge F. & A. M., No. 692 at the last election.

Mr. Everett Langford who has been in the United States Army, is at home now.

SUPPORTERS OF GOOD ROADS MET HERE

Saturday Afternoon and Effect An Organization—Plans Are Made.

A Good Road Convention was held in Hartford, Ky., on Saturday, January 13, 1912. House was called to order by Mr. L. B. Tichenor, who was elected as president of the meeting and of the organization. The next was the election of secretary and Messrs. Will Rhoads and B. F. Bean were nominated. Vote being taken resulted in Mr. Bean's election.

Business being proceeded with, an able and instructive talk was made by Judge R. R. Wedding. This talk was followed by short speeches by Supt. of Schools Henry Leach, T. L. Anderson, J. A. Johnson and L. B. Tichenor and W. H. Rhoads.

A committee composed of Messrs. R. R. Wedding, Will Rhoads and T. L. Anderson was appointed to fully investigate the matter of obtaining better roads, the equipment necessary, location of stone, if any in the county, cost of obtaining stone, etc.

No further business coming before the Association it was adjourned to meet in Hartford on Saturday, Feb. 10. A special invitation is given to each magistrate of this county to be present at the next meeting, February 10. It is the intention to induct the magistrates in the work he will be outlined by the Association. Invitation is also given to everyone to be present. Nearly every state in the Union has started the Good Road work, and Kentucky and Ohio county should not be behind in the work.

Notice of Dissolution.

Hartford, Ky., Jan. 15, 1912. Notice of dissolution of the Ohio County Supply Company.

Notice is hereby given that the Ohio County Supply Company, incorporated, is closing up its business, and will be dissolved by unanimous consent of all the stockholders.

All persons having claims against the said Ohio County Supply Company, will present the same to its President, R. B. Martin, at his office in Hartford, on or before the first day of March, 1912, or else the claim will be forever barred.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to the said Ohio County Supply Company will please call and settle the same with R. B. Martin, at his office in Hartford, Ky. OHIO COUNTY SUPPLY COMPANY. By OTTO C. MARTIN, Secy.

Attent: R. B. MARTIN, Pres. S. A. BRATCHER, Treas.

CHOPPERS HERE TOMORROW

For Big Initiation of Woodmen of World.

Will Be The Biggest Day Ever in History of Local Lodge of Woodmen.

(Communicated.)

The choppers are coming! They will be here regardless of weather conditions, though fair weather will insure a much larger crowd. Major R. E. Russell, District Manager, has all the detail work completed and is now busy pushing through the bundles of applications that are coming in at the eleventh hour. Permission has been granted to accept applications up to and including Saturday, January 20th, at 1 p. m. Candidates can be examined and obligated upon their arrival at Hartford and will be admitted to the meeting, but where possible, this should be done before reaching the city, as there is much work to be done on that day.

The committee on arrangements and reception are on to their respective jobs, and visitors will readily recognize the members, as they will wear badges. Col. J. H. Brewer, State Manager, of Louisville, will arrive Friday evening to take an active part in assisting Major Russell in the preparations on Saturday. Hartford Camp No. 202 will keep open house at the lodge rooms Saturday forenoon where candidates will be obligated and the pass-word given to those legally qualified and vouched for. State and District Headquarters will be opened in room 14, Commercial Hotel, this evening, where those having business with State or District Manager, can apply.

The Woodmen of the World of District No. 9, are in line for an exceptional treat, as arrangements have been made to have Dr. Schlich, the National Lecturer of Omaha, Neb., present. He will arrive with the Owensboro delegation about noon Saturday. He will also lecture at Owensboro on Sunday, January 21st in the interest of the order. Following is the program:

Parade at 1:30 p. m.
Address of Welcome—Otto Martin, Camp 202—2:00 p. m.
Response—Lonnie Stewart, Camp 260—2:20 p. m.
Conferring Amplified Protection Degree by Hartford Camp No. 202—3:00 p. m.
Conferring Sublime Degree of Morning, McHenry Camp No. 260—4:00 p. m.
Lecture by Dr. Schlich—7:00 p. m.
Public Installation of Officers of the various Camps in the District—8:00 p. m.

Major Russell deserves much credit for the studious and painstaking arrangements he has made for the meeting. He is a splendid lodge man of versatile talents, and has left nothing unattended to in his effort to make this one of the greatest meetings the W. O. W. folks have had in recent years.

John B. Rogers Dead.

Leitchfield, Ky., Jan. 15.—John B. Rogers died here of pneumonia. Mr. Rogers formerly took a prominent part in county politics, serving a term as County Court Clerk. For the last ten years he had been county manager for the Cumberland Telephone Company.

Coasting and Its Glories.

The following taken from the Columbus (O.) Journal, bears the earmarks of having been written by Col. E. S. Witham, formerly of Irons County:

"During the last snow spell the boys had out their sleds and did a deal of coasting. There is no memory of youth as glorious as that sport. Nobody ever thought that the fun of sliding down hill was in the slightest diminished by the labor of trudging back uphill.

The swift and exhilarating joy of sliding down the hillside was a grand part of a boy's experience, and will never grow stale in the memory.

What a great thing it would be if the spirit of that sport would get into the humdrum of life and brighten it up some.

There is one feature of this coasting business that stands out like a promontory. That was "belly-buster." There is no use to feel equanimity about the term or hesitate to breathe it aloud in a literary column.

That was the exciting feature of coasting and was indulged in mostly by the boys of daring and patched clothes. "Get out of the way!" he shouts and bang goes the sled on the slippery hillside, with the boy's legs stretched far astern like sled in the endeavor to guide it, but, failing, off he runs into a boy here, knocks one down there, and turns another end for end out in the snow. Oh, but it was glorious! One can hear that yell yet.

If men would do that to one another in the grown-up world, there would be fighting and madness all the time, but in the boy world it belonged to the beautiful sanctities of life. To this day we take off our hat to the "belly-buster."—Columbus Journal.

Cashier Dunn Complimented.

Rockport, Ky., Jan. 17.—So flattering was the showing made by the Rockport Deposit Bank to its stockholders in annual session that they highly praised the Cashier, Mr. J. R. Dunn, and the assistant Cashier Mr. J. I. Hosick, for their efficiency in managing the institutions affairs. The capital stock was increased from $15,000 to $18,000 and the following officers were elected: W. P. Her, President; Porter Hunley, Vice President; J. R. Dunn, Cashier; and J. I. Hosick, Assistant Cashier.

BRYAN'S CHOICE IS KERN AND O'GORMAN

Would Swing New York and Indiana and Capture Vote of Catholics.

Washington, January 13.—Those who are in position to understand pretty well the real bent of W. J. Bryan's mind are saying that his presidential ticket is John W. Kern, of Indianapolis, for President, and Senator James A. O'Gorman, of New York, for Vice-President. He has made no public expression of the choice, but the story is that he regards this as the strongest ticket that can be put in the field.

In the matter of considering a national ticket, Mr. Bryan said to be taking into careful consideration the fact that President Taft has a strong hold on the Catholics of the country. Senator O'Gorman is a Catholic, and it is believed his nomination would be pleasing to members of that church.

The Kern-O'Gorman slate also takes in to consideration the necessity of looking carefully after the pivotal States.

Niece of Lincoln's wife dies in Sanitarium.

Lexington, Ky., January 13.—Miss Susie E. Todd, a niece of Mary Todd Lincoln, wife of President Abraham Lincoln, died today at High Oaks Sanitarium, aged fifty-three years.

Old Citizen Dies.

Rockport, Ky., Jan. 17.—Mrs. William Wilcox, aged 84 years, one of the oldest and best known women of Ohio county died at her home in the Pond Run neighborhood, Tuesday of troubles incident in old age. Besides her husband she is survived by two children. Mr. Bryant Wilcox, a Policeman of Central City, and Mrs. Emily Acton, wife of Rev. T. J. Acton of Olanton. The funeral rites were conducted at the Pond Run church after which the remains were interred in the Pond Run cemetery.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—The story opens at Monte Carlo with Col. Terence O'Rourke in his hotel. O'Rourke, a military free lance and something of a gambler, is dressing for appearance in the restaurant below when the sound of a girl's voice singing attracts his attention. Leaning out on the balcony he sees a beautiful girl who suddenly disappears. He rushes to the corridor to see a neatly groomed form enter the elevator and pass from sight.

CHAPTER II.—O'Rourke's mind is filled with thoughts of the girl, and when he goes to the gaming table he allows his remarkable winnings to accumulate indifferently. He notices two men watching him. One is the Hon. Berthe Glyn, while his companion is Viscount des Trebes, a noted duelist. When O'Rourke leaves the table the viscount tells him he represents the French government and that he has been directed to O'Rourke as a man who would undertake a secret mission.

CHAPTER III.—At his room O'Rourke, who had agreed to undertake the mission, awaits the viscount. O'Rourke finds a mysterious letter in his apartment. The viscount arrives, hands a sealed package to O'Rourke, who is not to open it until on the ocean. He says the French government will pay O'Rourke 25,000 francs for his services. A pair of dainty slippers are seen protruding from under a doorway curtain and the viscount charges O'Rourke with having a spy secreted there.

CHAPTER III.

As he stepped out of the lift Colonel O'Rourke remarked a light in his room, visible through the transom over the door.

"The femme de chambre," he thought, "Sure and the poor thing's still busy trying to clear up. . . . To the contrary, he found the door fast. 'Tis careless she was to leave the light on," he observed, fitting his key in the lock.

If thoughtless in that one way, the woman had fulfilled the letter of her word in the other. It was with comprehensive relief (since he anticipated a caller) that he found the room once again presentable.

But one thing surprised him; and more surprising still was the fact that his ordinarily indifferent eye should have detected it at the first glance. He had indeed hardly entered before he became aware of a square of white paper tucked in the corner of the bureau mirror.

"The divvie, now!" he greeted it. "That's curious. . . . Could one of me many admirers have bribed the femme de chambre to bring a note to me?" He chuckled, holding to the light a much soiled envelope, grimy with the marks of many fingers, plastered with stamps and black with postage marks and substitute addresses, having evidently been forwarded over half the world before it reached the addressee: who was, in a bold hand, "Colonel Terence O'Rourke."

He whistled low over this, examining it intently, infinitely less concerned with its contents than with the manner by which it had reached him. The first postmark seemed to be that of Rangoon, the original address, the Cercle Militaire, his club in Paris. Thence, apparently, it had sought him in Galway, Ireland, Dublin, Paris again, and finally—after half a dozen other addresses—"C. of Mme. O'Rourke, Hotel Carlton, London." The London postmark was indecipherable. . . .

He found himself trembling violently. By one hand alone could this have reached him, since the post had not brought it to Monte Carlo. . . . He recalled that woman's voice which had so stirred him, the woman of the Casino whose bearing had seemed to him so familiar. . . .

Some one tapped on the door; he smothered a curse of annoyance, and went to answer, thrusting the letter into his pocket.

A page announced Monsieur le Comte des Trebes.

"Show the gentleman up," snapped O'Rourke. He was about to add, "in welcome. "Not to my knowledge," said he.

The Frenchman consulted his watch. "Ten minutes late, monsieur; it is ten past midnight."

"Then," said O'Rourke, "the top of the morning to ye. Enter, monsieur." He stood aside, closing the door behind his guest. "Tis no matter; if I thought ye punctual, 'tis so ye are to all intents and purposes. . . .

A chair, monsieur." He established Des Trebes by a window. "And a cigarette? . . . A drop to drink? . . . As ye will. . . . And since 'tis to talk secret business that we're here—would ye like the door locked?" "That is hardly essential!" Des Trebes reviewed his surroundings with swift, searching glance. "We are at least secure from interruption; one could ask little more."

"True for ye," laughed O'Rourke. He moved toward the alcove. "Now first of all I'm to submit proofs of me identity, I believe," he added, intending to dig out of his trunk a dispatch-box containing his passports and other papers of a private nature.

But Des Trebes had changed his mind. "That is unnecessary, monsieur. Your very willingness is sufficient proof. I have your word and am content."

"That's the way of doing business that I like," assented O'Rourke heartily, warming a little to the man as he turned back a chair facing the viscount. "Besides, I quarrel with no man's right to be reasonable. . . . And now I'm at your service, monsieur."

Des Trebes, lounging back, knees crossed, thin white fingers interlaced, black eyes narrowing, regarded the Irishman thoughtfully for a moment. Abruptly he sat up and removed from an inner pocket a long thin white envelope, thrice sealed with red wax and innocent of any super-scription whatever.

"Are you prepared, monsieur," he demanded incisively, "to play blind-man's buff?"

"Am I what?" asked O'Rourke, startled. Then he smiled. "Pardon; perhaps I fail to follow ye."

"I mean," explained the viscount patiently, "that I have to offer you a commission to act under sealed orders—he tapped the envelope—"the orders contained herein."

"And when would I be free to open that?"

"As soon as you are at sea—away from France, monsieur."

O'Rourke considered the envelope doubtfully. "From you, monsieur—from the Government of France, which you represent," he said at length, "yes; I will accept such a commission. France," he averred simply, "knows me; it wouldn't be asking me to do anything a gentleman shouldn't."

"You may feel assured of that," agreed Des Trebes gravely. "Indeed, I venture to assert you will find this—let us say—adventure much to your liking. . . . Then you accept?"

"One moment—a dozen questions, by your leave. . . . When must I start?"

"Tomorrow morning by the Cote d'Azur Rapide, at ten minutes to eight."

"And where will I be going?"

"First to Paris; thence to Havre; thence, by the first available steamer, to New York; finally, it may be to Venezuela, monsieur."

"Expenses?"

"I will myself furnish you with funds sufficient to finance you as far as New York. There our consul-general will provide you with what more you may require. It is essential that your connection with this affair shall be kept secret; should you draw on the government in this country, it would expose you to grave suspicions, perhaps to danger."

"I understand that," assented the Irishman. "But to obviate all danger of mistake, would it not be well to have one of your trusted agents meet me on the steamer and provide me with whatever ye figure I might require? 'Tis barely possible your consul-general might not recognize me in New York. Why should he? I never heard his name, even."

Des Trebes meditated this briefly. "It shall be as you desire, monsieur. It shall be arranged as you suggest."

"Finally, then, what is to be my recompense?"

"That must depend. I am authorized to assure you that in no case will you receive less than twenty-five thousand francs; in event of a successful termination of your mission, the reward will be doubled."

"Tis enough," said O'Rourke with a sigh; "I accept."

The Frenchman rose, offering him the envelope. "You must pledge yourself, monsieur, not to break these seals until you are at sea?"

"Absolutely—of course." O'Rourke took the packet, weighed it curiously in his hand and scrutinized the seals. He remarked that they were yet soft and fresh; the wax had been hot with in the half hour.

"I will do myself the honor of meeting you at the train to see you off, monsieur," said Des Trebes. "At that time, also, will I provide you with the funds you require."

"Thank ye."

Their hands met.

"Good night, Monsieur O'Rourke."

"Good night."

Half way to the door, Des Trebes paused. "Oh, by the way," he exclaimed carelessly, "I believe you are a friend of my old school-fellow, Chamberlain—mon cher Adolph?"

"Tis so," assented the Irishman warmly. "The best of men—Chamberlain!"

"Odd," commented the viscount; "only this afternoon I was thinking of him, wondering what had become of the man."

"The last I heard of him, he was in Algeria, monsieur—with some French force in the desert."

"Thank you. . . . On the point of leaving the viscount snapped his teeth on a second "Good night," and swore beneath his breath.

O'Rourke, surprised, stared. The Frenchman was standing stiffly at attention, as if alarmed. His pallor was, if possible, increased, livid—his closely shaven beard showing blue-black on his heavy jaws and prominent chin. His eyes blazed, shifting from the alcove to O'Rourke.

"Monsieur?" he demanded harshly, "what does this insult mean?"

"Mean?" iterated O'Rourke. "Insult? Faith, ye have me there."

Speechless with rage, Des Trebes gestured violently toward the alcove; and O'Rourke became aware that the curtains were shaking—wondering as though a draught stirred them. But there was no draught. And beneath their edge he saw two feet—two small, bewitching feet in the daintiest and most absurd of evening slippers, with an inch or so of silken stockings showing above each.

Des Trebes' eyes, filled with an expression unspeakably offensive, met the Irishman's blank, wondering gaze. "It is, no doubt," the Frenchman stammered, "sanctioned by your code to have me spied upon by the partner of your liaisons."

"But, monsieur—"

"I compliment the lady upon the smallness of her feet, as well as upon ankles so charming that I cannot bring myself to leave without a glimpse of their mistress' features."

Des Trebes moved toward the alcove. Thunderstruck, O'Rourke rapped out a stupefied oath, then in a stride forestalled the man. With him it was as if suddenly a circuit had closed in his intelligence, establishing a definite connection between the three—now four—most mystifying incidents of the evening.

"Less haste, monsieur," he counseled in a voice of ice. His hand fell with almost paralyzing force upon the other's wrist as he sought to grasp the curtain, and swung him roughly back. "Yourself will never know who's there—wherever the lady may be. . . . Ah, but no, monsieur!"

Maddened beyond prudence, Des Trebes had struck at his face. O'Rourke warded off the blow and in what seemed the same movement whirled the man round by his captive wrist and caught the other arm from the back. The briefest of struggles ensued. The Frenchman, taken at a complete disadvantage, was for all his resistance hustled to the door and thrown through it before he fairly comprehended what was happening.

Free at length, if on all fours, he scrambled to his feet to find O'Rourke had shut the door behind him, calmly awaiting the next move.

"Haven't ye had enough?" demanded the Irishman as the viscount, blinded with passion, seemed about to renew the attack. "Or are ye wishful to be going downstairs in the same fashion?"

Des Trebes drew back, snarling.

"You dog!" he cried. Then abruptly, by an admirable effort, he calmed himself surprisingly, drawing himself up with considerable dignity and throttling his temper as he quietly adjusted the disorder of his clothing. Only in his eyes, black as sloes and small, did there remain any trace of his malignant and unquenchable hatred.

"I am unfortunately," he sneered, "incapable of participating in such brawls as you prefer, Colonel O'Rourke. But I am not content. I warn you. . . . My rank prevents me from punishing you personally; I am obliged to fight gentlemen only."

O'Rourke laughed openly.

"But I advise you to leave Monte Carlo before morning. Should you remain, or should you come within my neighborhood another time—at whatever time—I will kill you as I would a rabid cur—or cause you to be shot."

"There's always the coward's alternative," returned the Irishman. "But ye mustn't forget ye've only the one leg to stand upon in society—your notoriety as a duelist. And I shall take steps to see that ye fight me before sunset. Else shall all Europe know ye for a coward."

Behind the viscount the lift shot up, paused, and discharged a single passenger. As swiftly the cage disappeared.

Out of the corner of his eye, O'Rourke recognized the newcomer as an old acquaintance, and his heart swelled with gratitude while a smile of rare pleasure shaped itself upon his lips. He had now the Frenchman absolutely at his mercy.

"Captain von Elnem," he said quickly, "by your leave, a moment of your time."

The man paused stiffly, with the square-set and erect poise of an officer of the German army. "At your service, Colonel O'Rourke," he said in impeccable French.

But the Irishman had returned undivided attention to Des Trebes. "Monsieur," he announced, "your nose annoys me." And with that he shot out a hand and seized the offensive member between a strong and capable thumb and forefinger. "It has annoyed me," he explained in parenthesis, "ever since I first clapped me two eyes upon ye, scum of the earth that ye are."

And he tweaked the nose of Monsieur le Viscount des Trebes, tweaked it with a will and great pleasure, tweaked it for glory and the Saints; carefully, methodically, even painstakingly, he kneaded and pulled and twisted it from side to side, ere releasing it.

Then stepping back and wiping his fingers upon a handkerchief, he cocked his head to one side and admired the result of his handiwork. "Tis an amazingly happy effect," he observed critically—"the crimson blotch it makes against the chalky complexion ye affect, Monsieur des Trebes. . . . And now I fancy ye'll fight. Your friends may call upon mine here—Captain von Elnem, with your permission."

"Most happy, Colonel O'Rourke," assented the German, blue eyes sparkling in an immobile countenance. "I shall await the seconds of Monsieur des Trebes in my rooms."

The Frenchman essayed to speak, choked with passion, and turning abruptly, somewhat unsteadily descending the staircase.

O'Rourke laughed briefly, offering the German his hand. "Twas wonderfully opportune, your appearance, captain dear," said he. "Thank ye from the bottom of me heart. . . . And now, will ye forgive me excusing myself until I hear from ye about the affair of the morning? I've a friend waiting in me room here. . . . Pardon the rudeness."

WHAT PUZZLED THE NEWSBOY

He Didn't Understand Primary Cause of Trouble, but Motorman Could Have Told Him.

It was a very busy hour on Forty-second street, and the traffic "cops" were having their hands extremely full, relates the New York Sun. Just as things were starting along, after a complicated blockade, a little newsboy dropped a quarter, and darted out into the street after it, under the nose of a motorman who had just started his car.

The indignant motorman threw on the brakes with a jerk. As the car came to a sudden stop an automobile directly behind it turned sharply to one side to avoid a collision. It skidded, the hood coming under the startled noses of a pair of dry horses. One of the front tires blew up with a loud report.

This was too much for the horses, and they jumped forward together. In another minute the heavily loaded dray was careening down the sidewalk, the people scattering in terror. A lamp post was knocked over, and the dray, thrown violently in the other direction, upset, flinging a couple of heavy boxes through a brilliantly lighted display window.

The broken electric lights fizzed for a minute, then the flimsy trimmings of the window caught fire, and in a few minutes the clanging of the fire department was added to the uproar, and the crowd extended for a full block in either direction.

When the fire was out, and the wreckage was being cleared away, the newsboy, with his quarter safe in his pocket, turned away and started down the street, murmuring to himself: "Gee, I wonder what begun all dat fuss!"

Fool's Name Lives.

The last struggle of the Moors against the power of the Catholic kings has been the topic of many a romance and poem, and Boabdil, the miserable rebel, the tool of women, the traitor, has become a hero at the expense of his brave father and still braver uncle, merely because it was he who surrendered the keys of Granada to Ferdinand and Isabella, and because as he looked for the last time upon the towers of the Alhambra, he stood "crying like a woman for the kingdom he could not defend like a man."

What a pitiful successor to the great Abdur Rahman Almansor, or even Al Ahmar, the founder of Boabdil's house! Yet the average reader, if he knows of the Moors at all, knows of Boabdil. The great names of Moorish history have been forgotten that the name of the rebel and traitor may live.—H. C. Chatfield Taylor's "The Land of the Castanets."

Some wheat bran in the ration is most suitable for the brood sows. It keeps the system cool and the bowels open.

Be sure there are no narrow doors for the sows to crowd through. One jam may cause the loss of a lamb or both ewe and lamb.

Do not try to winter the cows without grain. Wheat bran, corn-meal and oil-meal will be found valuable.

The cow your neighbor does not want to sell is the one you want to buy. Get around this dilemma by raising that kind yourself.

Going to the shop over icy roads with smooth shoes may ruin your best horse.

Wetting the hoofs with a sponge and clean water every day, or simply dipping each foot into a pail of water, will keep the feet from becoming dry.

A horse's teeth get out of condition as readily as do your own. Nowadays when one of our horses goes off feed, we at once look to his teeth before giving any other treatment.

With the beginning of winter there is less work for the horse, and he stands idle in the stable sometimes for days together. To avoid scratches, keep the legs of the horse free from mud, and the stalls clean and dry.

A horse is a good deal like a man. If you keep him bundled up in a heavy blanket in the barn, he will be almost frozen when you take him out-of-doors. You would not think of wearing an overcoat in the house, would you? If you blanket your horse at all in the stable, let it be with a light stable blanket.

And This is Leap Year Too.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16.—Representative Adam Spahn, of Louisville, will introduce in the Legislature a bill providing that the age of consent of a female to marry be fixed at eighteen years instead of twenty-one years, as under the present law. It is represented that eighteen years is the age fixed in the law of all neighboring States and that when couples applying for marriage licenses in Kentucky are refused because the girl is under twenty-one years old and has not the consent of her parents or guardian, they go to an adjoining State and are married with the result that Kentucky loses the marriage license and the couples are classed as runaways and elopers.

The Gun Toter in Germany.

Over in Germany, the other day, an American who had acquired the gun-toting habit became dissatisfied with the manner in which he was being treated in a certain hotel and fired a shot at the porter. We are informed by the cable that the porter at once ran into the street and summoned the police, the result being that the American was besieged in his room. There he continued to shoot, but eventually he was captured, so badly wounded that his recovery was considered doubtful. The remarkable thing about the affair was that the police were able to fill the ballroom without wounding anybody else. We have recently been sending delegates to Germany to study German industrial methods. Why not send some of our police officials to the Fatherland for the purpose of finding out how to deal with people who carry guns? —Chicago Record-Herald.

WAS "LULU" OF A PARSON'S WIFE

Former Kentucky Minister Thinks
He Has Grounds For a Divorce.

Pittsburg, Penn., January 17.—The lure of the fast life of the city proved more attractive than the quiet life of a minister's wife, and after a number of thrilling escapades, she left him, according to the testimony in the divorce suit of the Rev. William Christ against Louise Boone Cretz, of Mt. Sterling, Ky. Mrs. Cretz was in court contesting for the possession of their six-year-old son.

Mrs. Cretz claims to be a direct descendant of Daniel Boone. Married November 25, 1904, at Mt. Sterling, they lived for three years on the North Side of Pittsburg, where the Rev. Mr. Cretz had charge of the Observatory Hill Christian church. She left April 28, 1909. He said his wife would go away from home and stay out all night, and frequently he found her at the cafes and pleaded with her to mend her ways.

One night, when their baby was a year old, he testified, his wife stayed out all night and came home the next morning at 10 o'clock while he was in church preaching. City Detective Fred Will testified he had locked up Mrs. Cretz once when her husband had caught her with another man in March of 1909. The husband pleaded with his wife to do what was right, and she was discharged.

On another occasion the officer said that Mrs. Cretz kicked the window out of a taxicab when her husband wanted her to go home with him after she was found drinking in a cafe with a young man.

Corn Stories.

PROLIFIC CORN STOCK.
(Mt. Olive Advance.)

J. A. Wheatley, one of our aged farmers of near Sardis, in this county, brings to our office a stalk of corn grown by him. The stalk contains in addition to its nine ears of corn, enough fodder for an ordinary feed for a cow.

Now the above is a mighty good story, and he it understood that no one doubts its correctness, in the least. Indeed, that corn stalk has never but once been beaten, and that was by a Wayne county (W. Va.) farmer who beats it a mile or two.

The Wayne farmer said that he planted his corn in late spring and after it had come up he was passing through one of his fields and incidentally discovered one particular stalk that appeared to be of a different variety and was much more thrifty in appearance than the other stalks. Determining to see what it would amount to he stuck a cane with which he was walking in the ground, by the stalk. He went his way and never thought to notice the progress of that cornfield any more until about gathering time. While passing through the field this attention was directed to a stalk that seemed to have a great number of ears on it and he went to hanking them off. He finished the job and then counted thirteen full grown ears, besides several "nubbins." He then remembered that he had marked the stalk by having stuck his cane nearby it in the ground, and on seeing the cane still standing, he was really surprised to find a big ear hanging to it.

Elephant in Crap Game.

Fort Worth, Texas, Jan. 8.—"Myrtle," a huge elephant with a small circus which is wintering in Fort Worth, broke up a crap game and caused terror among a dozen negroes today because she took the "bones" for sugar lumps.

The elephant was gazing through a hole in the wall at the negroes intent on their game. One black had just called, "Come, s-b-n!" when the trunk shot past him into the center of the group and seized one of the dice.

Frenzied yells and a general scattering followed. The negroes declared a snake leaped among them, until shown the elephant.

Farm Topics.

THE COVERED BARNYARD.

The covered barnyard is rapidly coming into favor as a commodity to the farmer and dairyman. Built in any length and dimensions desired, in having this dairyman and farmer has his cattle insured against all inclemency of the weather at all times. Though left out in the yard for exercise, no matter what the season, the cattle are under shelter.

The manure also is left in the best possible condition and can be hauled out at any time during the winter when it is proper that it should be hauled out into the fields, as it does not freeze under cover, which is a great advantage in itself.

The straw also is utilized to the very best advantage. Whether the threshes from the barn or from the field, the farmer can have his straw deposited in the spacious mow of his covered barnyard through the doors opening on all sides. Dry straw available at all times, is certainly a boon to any farmer who has this advantage to his credit.—South Dakota Farmer.

REMEDY FOR HOG CHOLERA.

The following remedy for hog cholera has been used with good results, says the Kansas Farmer: Take equal parts of 4 per cent. solution of carbolic acid and 2 per cent. solution of morphine sulphate and give once daily hypodermically, twenty to forty drops, according to the size of the hog. Inject on inside of fore or hind leg above the knee or hock joint, using proper precaution as to cleanliness. Sprinkle well hogs from the sick, treating them the same as the sick.

MAKE EVERY STRAW COUNT.

It is possible for canless help to save a considerable portion of the grain crop in the field by mowing to gather or up scattering, loose bundles, etc., and by hauling grain on open-bottom racks. From a few pounds to a few bushels of grain may be saved every day during stacking by using a light-bottom rack or a canvas over the rack that will catch all of the grain that is scattered out of the hands.

Orange Judd Farmer.

KICK OUT THE MIDDLEMAN.

Many people have been led to believe that during these high-cost-of-living-times the farmers are getting rich. This is a mistaken idea. The American farmer hardly averages 40 cents on the consumer's dollar. So there seems to be something wrong somewhere. We need something to bring the farmer and the food consumer closer together. The man that will devise such means will be more than an inventor—a benefactor of the kind that has not lived for years.—Southern Fruit Grower.

PAYING DOUBLE.

No one begrudges the farmer his present prosperity. But when the city consumer has to pay double as much as the farmer gets, then he is restless and complains. It should not cost as much to bring butter or eggs or fruit or vegetables 100 miles to the city as it costs the farmer to produce them. The cost of transportation and distribution is inordinate and contributes more to high prices than the farmer's prosperity does.—Baltimore American.

The Choice of a Husband.

Is too important a matter for a woman to be handicapped by weakness, bad blood or foul breath. Avoid these ailments by taking Dr. King's Life Pills. New strength, fine complexion, pure breath, cheerful spirits—things that win men follow their use. Easy, safe, sure. 25 cents at all druggists.

A Word of Study.

Smallpox and diphtheria are contagious diseases—that's the technical and locally accepted name of the automobile in Flanders. "Small" (note the s sound before it is n, not m) means "rapid," "pandemic" means "horses-less," "zoonosis" means "disease of animals" and "diphtheria" is a disease of the throat, and, finally, "epidemic" implies a thing driven by pneumonia. So you have it, quite simply, and mere white whizzers and crab devils are outclassed. But how'd you like to be hit by a real "smallpandemic"?—St. Louis Republic.

When buying a cough medicine for children bear in mind that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is most effective for colds, croup and whooping cough and that it contains no harmful drug. For sale by all druggists.

FIRST INTENDED WAS SWITCHED

After Failure To Get Married But Bride-To-Be Finds Another
And Knot is Tied.

Winchester, Ky., Jan. 12.—The railroad man was no more expeditious in changing conditions than was the fair bride who was married Tuesday under discouraging circumstances. A week or two ago Sheriff Brock received notice that a couple on matrimony bent had eloped from Estill and the father wished them arrested when they reached this city; although it went against the grain to interfere with love's young dreams, Mrs. Brock felt constrained to do his duty and took them in charge. He gave them some fatherly advice and when the bride's father arrived he interceded to such good effect that the old gentleman released and told the young people to go back home with him and if the bride's mother was willing, the marriage should be celebrated. This was thought to be the end of it until Monday evening when the bride again appeared but this time the prospective groom was a different man. The credentials offered were not sufficient for the clerk to issue the license and with the thermometer hovering around the zero mark the groom and his attendant wended their way back to Estill county to get the proper papers. It was midnight when they reached home and daylight when they got back, but everything was alright and Judge Evans speedily said the words that united Russell Thomas and Miss Sude Hise for life.

Out of the Ginger Jar.

When in doubt ask your wife. The preacher can tie a knot as well as a sailor. Politics are often the most bothersome kind of ticks. Man proposes, but very often it is papa who disposes. The coal dealer should be careful to take the right weight. The salt may be coarse without being the least bit objectionable. Those who eat corn on the cob run a risk of having corn in the ear. Most men find it easier to hold a runaway horse than to hold the tongue.

Minister Kicked by woman.

Tampa, Fla., January 6.—Rev. R. E. L. Kirkland, who was kicked by women members of his congregation, spent New Year's Eve in bed, and six members of the church are in jail, as a result of a clash in the First Congregational Church here today.

After the service, at which the minister attacked a former pastor in connection with alleged misappropriations of the church funds, Kirkland endeavored to quell a controversy in which men and women had joined.

It was then he was injured. His sermon was on the subject "If Christ Lived Today, Would He Be a Socialist?"

FRIDAY, JANUARY 19.

The Democrats in the State legislature are going to investigate Republican Auditor's Agents for compelling certain corporations and rich people to pay taxes like poor people. This is great.

If Gov. Woodrow Wilson had succeeded in nailing down that Carnegie pension it would now come pretty handy in maintaining those publicity bureaus in his interest for the Democratic nomination for President.

A bill has been introduced in the New York legislature to abolish capital punishment. We predict that in fifty years no State in this Union will have a gallows or electric chair and the fact that we ever had will be looked back upon with horror and as a period of disgrace in our history by everyone.

The present legislature, Democratic in both houses, is providing many use less and wholly unauthorized positions for the faithful. Extra Pages, Assistant Door Keepers etc., are provided every few days. Would it not be well for the Kentucky delegation in Congress, who are making such a grand stand play at economy, to join in a remonstrance to the Democratic members of the Kentucky legislature?

The farmers of Ohio county are taking advanced steps on the subject of Good Roads, and the only good one are those which are macadamized. The meeting at the Court House last week deserves aid and sympathy from all our citizens, and we trust good results will follow. This paper has always been a strong advocate of rock roads and we want them to extend to all parts of the county so that every tax payer may be directly benefited. On with the good work.

On the recommendation of the County school Board the Fiscal Court at its recent session made the school levy for this year 15 cents instead of 20 cents as it had been for several years. This will be welcome news to the tax payers. The relief from road tax and this reduction in school taxes will help our people already impoverished by several crop failures. Sgt. Leach has been working hard to get the school houses in the county in good condition. Many new ones have been built in the past two years and when there were no walls or way provided for water, this has been remedied. School conditions in the county are better than they have ever been.

The abolishment of the position of Road and Bridge Commissioner by the Fiscal Court should not be taken as a criticism of Judge Taylor (who has held this important office for two years, at a time when the county was changing systems of road working, when it was the most trying position which any one could be called upon to fill. Besides they were two of the worst seasons ever experienced in the county for road building, because of excessive rains. During the time almost all the small bridges in the County were washed away many of them several times and the work on the roads ruined time and again. The members of the Court and every one who knows him has the utmost confidence in the honesty and devotion to duty of Judge W. B. Taylor. The change was made because the County is too large for one man to cover in looking after the roads and bridges, and to reduce cost to the tax payers.

Leap Year is Silly.

New York, Jan. 13.—"Is leap year of any service to me? Of course not! Of course not! The idea of proposing to a man never entered my head. I have other and more important things to think of. You ask me a silly and personal question. The only people who think anything of leap year and the chance of girls taking the initiative and making proposals of marriage are men. Women don't think of such thing for a minute."

This is what Miss E. Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of England's most militant suffragette, thinks of leap year and the chance it affords unmarried women of taking a militant attitude with Cupid.

She expressed herself emphatically on the subject as soon as she arrived from Southampton today for a three months' speechmaking tour of the United States.

Miss Pankhurst was astonished when told that many women had taken advantage of leap year and had pressed their charms on the young men of this country.

"It would be well for those girls to think of matters of more importance," she said. "The woman of the future will be the ideal woman, who will not worry herself into a state of nervous prostration over trivial matters, such as the winning of a man's affections."

"The reason why mother and I and other English women come to America to talk suffrage is that when woman on the other side of the Atlantic hear what we are doing in this country it stimulates their interest in the cause. We have won the first part of our fight and we shall have our rights this year."

"We have simply kept on fighting and it was necessary for us to nuzzle Lloyd George and Mr. Asquith a little to get anything. If you don't bother the life out of English statesmen you will never get anything."

"The trouble in America is that the average citizen does not take enough interest in politics; he leaves that to the grafters. When women take a hand there will be fewer grafters. Women have made excellent mayors in England and they have also proved splendid magistrates."

Millionaire for One Day.

New York, Jan. 15.—John Jay McDevitt, the Wilkesbarre man who has determined to live like a millionaire for one day at least, is due to arrive in Jersey City at 6 o'clock this evening. His special train over the Lehigh Valley will cost him more than $300 for the one-day trip.

McDevitt got his spending money by withdrawing as a candidate for County Treasurer. He put himself up as a candidate in the primaries, and so many people voted for him just as a joke that he was nominated. The County Committee became alarmed and tried to get him to withdraw. The negotiations for withdrawal were conducted through the press. McDevitt naming a higher price each day. At last the committee paid him something like $2,500 to get off the ticket.

He once ran for Mayor of Wilkesbarre, but got only a few votes.

On account of the steady demand for teachers who can not only give instructions in classes, but who also are able to direct their pupils in the different branches of athletics, arrangements are being made at State University by which students who expect to become teachers can be given instruction in both the theoretical and practical study of athletics and the best method of coaching. The class in the study of athletics will probably be started next week, and the students who join this class will be given credit for their work the same as in other studies.

As a result of an explosion of a can powder in the home of Mrs. Wells, a farmer of Perry county near the Letcher county line. Mrs. Mullin, Mrs. Wells and two small children were killed outright, and Mr. Wells was perhaps mortally wounded.

The Wells home was completely wrecked. One of the children, unawares, carried the can of powder near the fire, which caused the explosion.

The loss by the fire which burned the heart of Pembroke's business district was much heavier than at first estimated. Nearly $60,000 worth of property was destroyed, with $37,500 insurance.

W. K. Griffin, after serving as chief dispatcher of the Henderson division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad for several years, with headquarters at Earlington, has accepted a similar position with the Kentucky Central at Paris, Ky. J. H. Fish, who has been night chief of the Louisville and Nashville, succeeds Mr. Griffin.

John G. Kelly, Democratic member of the Legislature from Hancock county, has been re-elected secretary of the County Union of the American Society of Equity and J. B. Holland was re-elected president.

Monday was County Court day at Mt. Sterling and there were 2,000 cattle on the market. Prices were sky high, and yearlings brought 5 cents with 1,000 pound steers selling at $5.55 per 100 pounds. Notwithstanding the extreme cold there were buyers from all sections of the State and trade was brisk.

News reached May'sville of the burning of the home of Andrew Lawson, twelve miles south of Quincy in Lewis county. Mr. Lawson, who was seventy-two years of age, was burned in trying to put out the fire.

Woodson Baker, a negro, was run over and killed by an Illinois Central train near Elizabethtown. His body was badly mangled, and was frozen when found.

The first pardons granted by Gov. McNary since he has been in office were issued Monday.

A pardon was granted Harvey Ingle convicted in Bell county of assault and battery. He was fined $75 and given a sentence of ten days in jail. He paid the fine and the Governor pardons the jail sentence. A pardon also was granted to C. C. Wymore, convicted in Hardin county of carrying concealed a deadly weapon.

Suit will be filed by the Attorney General for the State against those county officials, in many counties of the State who have been found delinquent. McKenzie R. Todd, State Inspector and Examiner, has found many county officials delinquent, and has so reported to the Governor from time to time.

Investigation of the burning of a barn in Crittendon county by a band of supposed night riders is under way and Clifford Bosworth, State Fire Marshal, who was in Frankfort, says he hopes to be able to convict the man who burned the barn. Mr. Bosworth will have offices in Lexington and Louisville.

Pending the disposition by the Legislature of the bill to establish a banking commissioner's department, with a provision for inspection, the present examiners, who served under Dr. Ben L. Bruner, Secretary of State, and who held over under Dr. C. F. Oneodius, his successor, will not be employed. They will wait for a few weeks before resuming their work inspecting banks.

James Garrett, Attorney General, has gone to Columbia to bring his wife and children to Frankfort to make their

|--|--|--|
| Is the best woman's magazine published. It towers head and shoulders over all competitors in being of real value to the woman who is in charge of her home—or expects to be. It has the best fiction, housekeeping hints, recipes and menus that money can buy. There are pages of fashion news articles of the day that will departments for the children, and news articles of the day that will appeal to the husband and father as strongly as they do to the wife and daughter. | Aims to be—and is—the most interesting magazine in America. Two great novels will be published as serials this year: "The Tuning Point," by Robert W. Chambers, with illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson; and "The Price She Paid," by David Graham Phillips, and illustrated by Howard Chandler Christy. One begins in our October number, the other in November. Other features are George Randolph Chester, Jack London, Gouverneur Morris E. Phillips, Oppenheim and other eminent authors and artists. | Is pre-eminently the best, among the review magazines, just as Cosmopolitan is sister publication, is admitted the best general magazine. All the news—here, in Europe and in the Far East—of politics, science, religion and art will be told each month, a little more completely, a little more clearly, a little better than any other publication. The illustrations will be superb. No matter what other magazine you read you cannot afford to be without The World To-Day. |

Big Profit Made.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Uncle Sam's venture in scalping theater tickets on New Year's day netted three hundred dollars, according to the report made yesterday to the Federal District Court in connection with the receivership of the H. N. Westfall company.

Having taken over the Westfall business, receiver McVey was authorized by Judge Landis, of the United States District Court, to continue it.

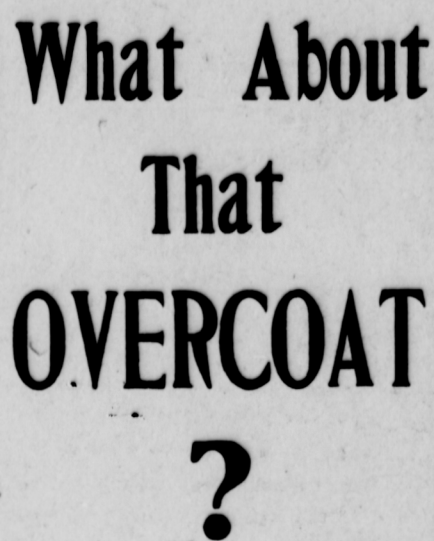

McVey purchased eight hundred tickets of admission to Chicago theatres on New Year's day. He sold them for $1,600, and made a profit of $300.

The average profit, McVey explained to the court, was only 25 cents a ticket, because there was only a small supply on hand when he took charge and he was compelled to buy from other scalpers.

NEW PLAN ADOPTED BY HARVESTER COMPANY

By Experience They Learn That Newspaper Advertising Pays.

The Brookings News, of Cleveland, Ohio, says:

Orville L. Pace, representing the International Harvester Co., and block man for the I. H. Co. in Kentucky, started on his new year's work last week. Mr. Pace said that last year the company employed thirty new men, and only five of them made good. One of his hardest parts is employing dependable men and says it is almost impossible to find men who will stick to their work long enough to make themselves valuable to the company. Another part of his work is to get names for the Harvester's Company advertising bureau. He tries his best to get the right names and addresses so the advertising matter will be sure to reach them. "As much pains as we take to get addresses accurate, one-half of the advertising material we send out comes back to our office," he said. The International Harvester Company has its own system of advertising—a system of sending out circulars, souvenirs and other novelties, expecting them to reach the trade, but they never do. More than one-half of the "junk" lies in the post-office uncalled for or on the desk or in the hands of their agents. Saturday on I. H. Co. advertising man was on the train giving away little pearl handkerchiefs as ads for the company. He said they were going to abolish this way of advertising and use the newspapers.

To learn that newspaper advertising is the best, has cost the International Harvester Company thousands of dollars. We are glad they are contemplating to advertise through the newspapers, and hope they will do it. This is an age of advertising and the most reliable medium known.

Be a Booster for Your Home Town

What would you think of a person that would speak disrespectful of his own home? If he should go around telling everybody he moves what an old reprobate his father is, or what a poor housekeeper his mother is, you would think he was a good subject for the lunatic asylum. And he would be. But that is not much worse than going around knocking on your home town or home county. Pity his fellow who hasn't anything to do but speak evil of his community. When you see a fellow knocking on his home town, its dollars to doughnuts that he is a worthless character and is "sore" because he is not doing quite as well, from a business standpoint, as home of the people he is talking about.

Jealousy is usually at the bottom of all evil statements. What's what causes one town to knock on another; one church member to speak evil of another member, or one person in a town to go about making a fool of himself saying mean things about his neighbor. If you meet a person like this beware—he will be talking about you next.

Prominent American Printers.

Volumes might be written about the important and interesting parts which the printers of Europe and America have played in promoting progress and achieving the greater and broader liberty and prosperity of today. Prominent among them stands our own Benjamin Franklin, the printer-boy of Boston. Others are worthy of like honorable mention like the martyred Lovejoy, murdered in Illinois, because of his opposition to human slavery; William Lloyd Garrison, who more than once narrowly escaped death of brutal violence because of his devotion to human freedom; Horace Greeley, whose weaknesses and peculiarities can never obscure the fact that for many decades he made the New York Tribune the inspiration and reliance of myriads who loved liberty and detested oppression. Besides these and others whose names have attained a world-wide recognition a vast army of humble, hopeful, ambitious editor-printers have accompanied the progress of English and American civilization and civilization, in every clime and continent under the sun.—The Printer and Publisher, Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine for January.

BAD CASE OF GRIP

Caused Sore Throat and Tonsillitis. Restored by Peruna.

Mr. W. H. Housley, Greenville, Tennessee, writes: "Five years ago I took a very severe cold which resulted in la grippe. I never was so bad off. I was in bed several weeks, and when I did get up I had tonsillitis and sore throat. 'I tried to cure this for eighteen months, but it gradually got worse. A doctor advised me to have my tonsils cut out, but I did not like the idea. Another doctor examined me, and told me the same thing. I finally got a bottle of Peruna, and after I had taken one bottle my throat was better. I bought and used a dozen bottles, and saw I was going to get well, and I did.'"

Peaches take more Potash from the soil than any other fruit crop. It has been conclusively proven that flavor and shipping quality are not secured unless there is an adequate supply of

POTASH

The best growers use from 100 to 200 pounds of Muriate of Potash annually on their orchards in addition to the phosphate. The application of mineral fertilizers should begin when the trees are planted, so as to insure strong wood and early bearing, continuous fruiting and longer bearing period.

Most peach orchards starve to death at a time when they should be giving their very best returns. Feed them a balanced ration and reap the profits.
